

Facilitating Collaboration,
Improving Care:

Anesthesia's Role in Safe Obstetrics

*25th Anniversary
Symposium of
Dutch Obstetric
Anesthesia*

2 - 4 May 2018
Amsterdam

Centered around Lieve Blancquaert's intriguing photographs on how the world welcomes its children, this full day course will explore the different challenges and potential solutions to safety and quality improvement in obstetrics and obstetric anaesthesia care.

The Netherlands is well-known for the physiological approach to pregnancy and delivery. The recent transition to integrated maternal care has further optimised collaboration between midwives and obstetricians, but little attention has been paid to the contribution of anaesthesia in delivering safe and high-quality perinatal care.

The current changes in maternal demographics such as age, comorbidities and analgesic preferences require active participation of anaesthesia in obstetric care. In this course you will be given the opportunity to recognize anaesthesia's role in safe and high-quality obstetric care, to identify the different barriers to value-based safe maternal care for women in diverse societies around the world, and to focus on the organisational changes needed to optimise collaboration.
